2. New Professional Animal Training Journal The International Institute for Applied Companion

Animal Behavior is publishing a professional animal training journal <http://www.iiacab.com/journal.html>. Angelica Steinker, the owner of Courteous Canine, Inc. has submitted an article on social psychology and dog training and it was accepted.

The premier issue of this journal will be available in January or February of 2007. Even if you aren't a professional animal trainer this will be an excellent resource for all people interested in how animals learn.

3. Dogs in Need

As every year, many dogs lost their homes over the holidays. People decide they are too busy or other inexplicable reasons to those of us who love our dogs, decide to abandon their dogs. There are several dogs needing homes. If you or someone you know is looking for a dog, please contact Info@CourteousCanine.com so that we can pass on profiles of dogs needing homes.

Stretching Your Performance Dog
Available at www.CleanRun.com

No matter what your goals, this video is for you. If you are interested in relaxing your wired agility dog this video contains valuable info on how to do it. If you want to increase circulation or in general increase your bond with your dog learning to stretch your dog can help.

Simple Steps for Solving Common Puppy Behavior Problems by Alexandra Santos
Available at www.iUniverse.com This little booklet is cram packed with great puppy training info.

From housetraining, mouthing, and jumping up on people to crate training, destructive chewing and alone training this little book has it covered. As an added bonus it also includes information on training coming when called and pulling on leash. At forty-three pages it is a quick read. I highly recommend it for any new puppy parents!

For the Love of a Dog by Patricia McConnell Available at www.Dogwise.com Desiring to write a few sentences on this book, I literally find myself wordless. It is the best dog book ever written. The information in this book is profound whether you are simply a dog parent, professional trainer or serious hobby trainer. If you love dogs, it isn't a choice, you have to read this book.
